There are a variety of ways to edit images using Photoshop, ranging from simple to complex tasks. Some of them work best for certain types of images. Some of them can be as expensive as a full-fledged Photoshop license or even beyond. In this post, we're going to take a look at the different options Photoshop Elements has to offer. We will cover photo editing options from general image editing to specific features like feature photo editing, red-eye removal, sketch editing, crop editing and photo drawing. Once we are done with all of this, we will find out which options could be used best in your workflow and which can be turned off and on. If you want to learn more about the basics of Photoshop and Photoshop elements (either the full-fledged version or the simpler version), check out our Photoshop and Photoshop Elements blog posts. When would I use Photoshop Elements? The best way to find out which image editing features will suit your needs is to look at the image you are going to use and decide what image editing features are important to you. For example, if you are making a company logo or a photo poster, the features that make the most sense are the ability to edit colors, layers and canvas sizes. On the other hand, if you are going to design a web page, you'd be better off with features that allow you to work with fonts and create web images. The ways to edit images on Photoshop Elements are divided into two categories: Features that can be turned off and on Features that you are required to have (like in Photoshop) So, which of these editing options will you need most? 1. Q: Why is my Elastic Search queries returning no results? I am trying to run a query against my Elasticsearch server using the Java API. The query should return an answer for almost 10,000 records in about 20 seconds. The query is running in a loop for about 4 hours without returning an answer. I'm trying to simulate a slow query so that I can fix it and get results from the index in another test script. However, I don't seem to be getting any result from the query. I am running the query on the ES admin server. In the following code, why do I not get results from the query? public static void main(String[] args) throws IOException, URISyntaxException { Config elasticsearchConfig = getConfig(System.getenv("ELASTICSEARCH_ES_CONF")); String host = elasticsearchConfig.getString("ip"); String port = elasticsearchConfig.getString("port"); String index = elasticsearchConfig.getString("index"); String type = elasticsearchConfig.getString("type"); String query = elasticsearchConfig.getString("query"); final String PORT_NUM = "9200"; final String HOST_NUM = "localhost"; final String INDEX_NUM = "19_myindex"; long start = System.currentTimeMillis(); Client client = Client.builder().build(); try { System.out.println("get Elasticsearch status"); if(!client.indicesExists(HOST_NUM)) { client.createIndex(INDEX_NUM, type); } System.out.println("run query"); SearchResponse response = client.prepareSearch().setQuery(query).setSize(1).execute().actionGet(); System.out.println(response.toString()); System.out.println("end");
